CENTRAL MAINE POWER CO. GROWING EVERY DAY

A number of Maine towns that have never before enjoyed the benefits of electric current, will have all the comforts and conveniences that come with the use of electricity this winter. The Central Maine Power Company is now making several line extensions and is bending every effort to finish these lines before winter sets in in earnest. The probabilities are that these lines will be in operation at the appointed times.

This has been an active construction year on the lines of the company. The big high tension line from Farmingdale to Lewiston, a distance of 30 miles, was built in a month. A new high tension line from Waterville to Skowhegan and still another from Skowhegan to Guilford are being built at the present time. These are important links in the company's interconnected system.

A new service line from South Paris to West Paris and Paris, a distance of 10 1-2 miles, is partially completed. The poles are half set and houses along the line are being wired, ready to take the current as soon as it is made available through the new line.

Another service line, "tapped" onto the Farmingdale Lewiston high tension line at Wales Crossing, has been put through to Wales, Leeds Junction and Monmouth. All the poles on this line have been set and the stringing of the wire will begin immediately. This line will probably be ready for service about Dec. 10.

From Lewiston another service line is being started this week to the town of Greene and will be in operation in a few weeks if all goes well.

WANTED

We pay 2 cents per pound for clean rags suitable for wiping purposes.

LESLIE D. BROWN

After several months of waiting Mr. Leslie D. Brown passed the boundary line, Tuesday morning and joined his wife, who went beyond last February.

Although not a rugged man, Mr. Brown was in fair health until last February when the influenza entered his home and took from him his life companion and his own health. All summer he has been steadily failing and the end came to him gladly.

Mr. Brown was born in Harmony, Maine, sixty-four years ago. His young manhood was spent in Milan and Berlin, N. H. Sixteen years ago he came to Bethel and purchased the Glines farm, on the Locke's Mills road, where he has since resided.

Of a somewhat retiring nature he did not join in the affairs of the village although he maintained a keen interest in them. His joy was in his home and he watched with pride the development of his son into sturdy manhood, and his four grandsons were a great pleasure to him.

He is survived by his son, Carl L. Brown, who, with his wife, have tenderly cared for him in his last days, and four grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at the home on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock under the auspices of the Odd Fellows.

LEWIS SHAW

Mr. Lewis Shaw died very suddenly on Wednesday, Nov. 3, at the home of his brother, Fred Shaw, where he had made his home for a number of years.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Shaw and was born in Cambridge 73 years ago.

He is survived by two brothers, Mr. Fred Shaw of Bethel, Mr. Byron Shaw of Boston, and two sisters, Mrs. Ella Mills of Harrison and Mrs. Clara Whitman of Lewiston.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the neighbors and friends for their kindness and for the beautiful flowers, and Mr. Curtis for his words of comfort.

Events of Interest From Washington

PUBLIC UTILITY RELATIONS IMPROVED

There are strong indications that there has been a better feeling established between the various public utilities and the communities which they serve. Primarily this is due to the deep-seated sense of justice that exists in the hearts of the American people, whose common sense told them that the universal change in industrial and economic conditions could not overlook the public utilities in the readjustment.

In furtherance of this conviction the appointment of the Federal Electric Railways Commission by the President, and the report which the latter presented, served the purpose of establishing a basis for the consideration of street railway fares and changes in franchise conditions in different parts of the United States. Already most of the street railways of the country have been absolved from the necessity of doing business on the five cent fare. The politicians who sought to make capital out of the upset relations between communities and their railways have been met by a public willing to face the new conditions in transportation. The street railway managements that have shown a disposition to supply the public with the highest efficiency at the lowest cost, under public supervision and control broad enough to safeguard the public interest and to protect the investors while at the same time preserving a condition guaranteeing proper wages to employes, and recognizing the right of the men to deal collectively with their employers, have furnished a method of action that has eased the way towards reconstructing public relations with reference to the utilities.

DISTRIBUTING CARS

An interesting statement by the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association tells of the success of the railroads in producing greatly enlarged service from their existing equipment. At the termination of federal control of the freight cars of the American railroads were scattered helter-skelter. There were too many box cars in the east and too many coal cars in the west. Following the armistice the railroads prepared for handling the crop of 1918 by providing a reserve of 63,000 cars on Western railroads. But in the spring of

A commemoration of this event by churches scattered from Maine to Oregon has been planned by the National Federation of Religious Liberals, and a special order of service has been arranged by Frank H. Dart of Newton, Mass., secretary of the Federation. The exercises will include the reading of the compact by the congregation, an address by the pastor and patriotic music under direction of the choir. N. E. M. P. A. TO HOLD A MEETING AT SO. PARIS

The New England Milk Producers' Association has invited all farmers of Oxford County, whether they are members of the Association or not, to attend the annual meeting of the County Association to be held Nov. 20 at 10.30 A. M., in Grange Hall in South Paris. Assistant Manager W. P. Davis, will be the speaker.

Similar meetings will be held in other counties in the state on the same day, with speakers from the Central Association to discuss the big problems which are before the milk producers of New England. Among the questions which will come up for discussion are whether the present 3.7 per cent butterfat standard shall be retained as a basis for marketing milk and the proposed rating plan under which farmers will be freed from a system which cuts down their receipts in times of the greatest milk production, even though they are not producing more than their normal amount. Both of these factors make big differences in the receipts of every farmer who sells milk.

Sales of milk bring back $60,000,000 annually to the farms of New England. While only two-thirds of this is sold through the New England Milk Producers' Association, as the selling agent of its members, the price received by the other third of the dairy farmers is determined largely by the price at which the Association sells. In former years it has been the custom to have the county meetings only for delegates from the local associations but in view of the magnitude of the milk business and the large questions involved in decisions which will be made at these meetings it was decided to throw these meetings open to all farmers and to invite them in to take part in the discussion this year.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

LITTLE FOLKS' PLAYTHINGS

Readin', Writin', 'Rithmetic Early Are Taught at Home by Toys and Games

A worsted ball if kept clean, makes a good plaything for a little baby. If it is suspended from his carriage or crib it will help him to learn to focus his eyes, and he will be amused by it for a long time. When the child is a little older, let him sit on a quilt on the floor and play with several balls in the six colors red, orange, yellow, green, blue and violet. Each ball should have a worsted string of the same color attached to it. When the child is a little older still, play simple little games with him, such as rock-a-bye baby, pendulum of a clock, swinging the ball back and forth and up and down and in other ways that will occur to every mother. Unconsciously the child will acquire a sense of form, color, motion and position by such games. Say to him "See the pretty round ball." "See the pretty red paper" and the child will delight to find and bring to you other things that are round like a ball, and red like the paper. A set of worsted balls in the six colors can be obtained from kindergarten supply houses.

Long slim clothespins make excellent playthings for babies. They can be used as babies or soldiers or to make fences, trees, log houses and many other interesting things. Playthings that can be taken apart and put together again are good to have; also blocks with which the child can build all kinds of objects—engines that he can push along the floor, balls to bounce and throw, doll carriages, washing sets, etc. Dolls with clothes that button and unbutton and come off, may be used to teach the children how to dress and undress themselves.

For older children kindergarten beads are very useful and helpful. They are in the form of half-inch wooden balls, cubes and cylinders, in the six colors, and also in the natural unstained wood. A shoe lace or bodkin and cord is used for stringing them. I would suggest to begin with, that the child strings balls only, and all in one color. After he has made a long string of these ask him if he would like to use two colors. He will probaly string them in irregular order at first, and if so it will be necessary to suggest alternating the colors putting on two of one color and one of another, and so on. In this way he will soon learn colors and numbers.

What else is there with which little children's hands can be kept occupied? First of all sand. Just turn the children loose in a pile or a box of sand with a spoon, a pail, a cup, or anything with which they can dig or shovel. I personally do not like to have sand in the house, but if you have a suitable place for it, it need not make any trouble. An old kitchen table tured upside down with the legs cut short and put on the other side makes a good table for sand. A piece of burlap or demin placed under the table keeps the sand from being scattered over the house.

With clay, a simple little cradle may be made. The child first rolls a piece into a ball, cuts it in half, with a string. One of these halves forms the lower part of the cradle. The other he cuts in two using one piece for the top and remodel ing the other into a ball for baby.

Bird's nests with eggs can be made with clay; also apples, oranges, cups and saucers and even animals may be attempted. In fact, clay has almost endless possibilities as play material.

For little children before they are old enough to use scissors, tearing paper is an engaging occupation. Tear a piece of an old newspaper into an oblong shape—it may be any size, about 4x4 inches we will say. By folding this in the middle it will make a little tent. Again fold in thirds, turn both ends down for a table. The child can tear paper into trees a ball, doll babies and many other simple shapes.

When the child is old enough he can begin to use scissors, but be sure to provide a pair with blunt points that cannot possibly hurt him. These will afford endless hours of amusement and profit. Have you found that "he cuts paper all over the floor?" Of course he does, but use this occasion to teach him neatness. Let him have his own little waste basket. Let him cut pictures from old magazines and paste them into a book made from manilla wrapping paper. To make the book, take any desired size of paper, fold several sheets in half, and sew them together along the crease. A pretty picture might be pasted on the front page, or the child could draw one on it. This will take many day's work, but all the time he will be learning many lessons in patience, concentration, muscular development, and will be developing artistic talent if he is apt at drawing. Best of all, he will be gaining [illegible] to do things. If, in his cutting [illegible] to a picture that has a [illegible] to him. Mr. Ames had not been in very good health for some time past, suffering with an affection of the kidneys, and about three weeks ago, a severe cold developing, brought on complications which could not be overcome, although he submitted to an operation on Oct. 24th, hoping it might be of benefit to him. At the special town meeting held in Municipal Hall on Monday morning of this week, the articles calling for additional appropriations for schools were acted upon favorably, the amount asked for, $7,000, to be obtained by loan at the present time, same to be added to the tax budget of 1921. Under article 5, asking for an appropriation for the Municipal Park, Mr. O. J. Gonya spoke in favor, and asked for $5,000. He was opposed by lawyer Albert Belliveau and others, who questioned the legality of any appropriation for this purpose. Rumford's tax rate is up to its limit, and with a tax rate of 46 in 1920, most of the voters present felt that they should not begin to mortgage the 1920 levy at this time. The article was defeated.

THAT DULL ACHING

Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys, lame and achy backs, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Read this statement:

F. I. French, farmer, 25 Chapman St., Bethel, says: "I have a very high regard for Doan's Kidney Pills, for I have never used them but what they have helped me. My work has always been of a heavy nature, lumbering and lifting logs. I blame this for the starting of my kidney trouble. At times my back has been very lame and a sort of dull ache has settled in it. I had blinding, dizzy spells, when everything would turn black before me. My kidneys weren't acting regularly and I hadn't much ambition to do my work. I was advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills and went to Bosserman's Drug Store. I got three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and when I had finished taking them, my troubles were over and I have never since had any more kidney disorder. I have always recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to those I have heard complaining of kidney trouble."

Formerly the churchgoer prepared himself to sit in his pew on a Sunday for four or five hours at a stretch. The regular services gave him his religious instruction and a subsequent discourse informed him on matters of general interest to the community. News circulates so rapidly nowadays that such procedures are no longer common; nevertheless the value of the spoken word is still superior to that of the written. It has a force, a personal quality that makes it ring in the memory, particularly when it comes from the pulpit. Will not every chapter see to it that this force is set in motion within its community on Roll Call Sunday, November 14.

POEMS WORTH READING

AUTUMN

With what a glory comes and goes the year!
The buds of spring, those beautiful harbingers
Of sunny skies and cloudless times, enjoy
Life's newness, and earth's garniture spread out;
And when the silver habit of the clouds
Comes down upon the autumn sun, and with
A sober gladness the old year takes up
His bright inheritance of golden fruits,
A pomp and pageant fill the splendid scene.

There is a beautiful spirit breathing now
Its mellow richness on the clustered trees,
And, from a beaker full of richest dyes,
Pouring new glory on the autumn woods,
And dipping in warm light the pillared clouds.
Morn on the mountain, like a summer bird,
Lifts up her purple wing, and in the vales
The gentle wind, a sweet and passionate wooer,
Kisses the blushing leaf, and stirs up life
Within the solemn woods of ash deep-crimsoned,
And silver beech, and maple yellow-leaved,
Where Autumn, like a faint old man, sits down
By the wayside a-weary. Through the trees
The golden robin moves. The purple finch,
That on wild cherry and red cedar feeds,
A winter bird, comes with its plaintive whistle,
And pecks by the witch-hazel, whilst aloud
From cottage roofs the warbling bluebird sings,
And merrily, with oft-repeated stroke,
Sounds from the threshing-floor the busy flail.

O, what a glory doth this world put on
For him who, with a fervent heart, goes forth
Under the bright and glorious sky, and looks
On duties well performed, and days well spent!
For him the wind, ay, and the yellow leaves
Shall have a voice, and give him eloquent teachings.
He shall so hear the solemn hymn, that death
Has lifted up for all, that he shall go
To his long resting place without a tear.

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

OUR HOMEMAKER

Where the mountains slope to the westward
And their purple chalices hold
The new made wine of the sunset,
Crimson and amber and gold.

In this old, [illegible] doorway,
With the elm boughs overhead,
The [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] her
And [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] to welcome our coming,
Watching [illegible] [illegible] climb
In the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
Oh, many and many a time!

To live to [illegible] [illegible]
Of the early [illegible] [illegible]
Perfect in [illegible] and fragrance,
Although it is hardly done.

Again is her [illegible] [illegible],
And the house is garnished and sweet,
But the [illegible] waits for our coming,
And we enter with silent feet.

A little within she is waiting;
Not where she has met us before,
For over the pleasant threshold
She is only to cross once more.

The smile on her face is quiet,
And a lily is on her breast,
Her hands are folded together,
And the word on her lips is "rest."

And yet it looks like a welcome,
For her work is compassed and done;
All things are seemly and ready,
And her summer is just begun.

It is we who may not cross over,
[illegible] with song and prayer,
A little way into the glory
We may reach, as [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

HEARD WHAT ANOTHER WOMAN SAID

Mrs. Margaret Bonneire of Murray Street, St. John, N. B., writes: "I heard a lady saying she bought a bottle of 'Dr. True's Elixir' for her children, and it was splendid. I am glad I know of something good now. I got a bottle and I think it is great."

The laxative mentioned above is Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It is very pleasant to take; children like it, and it is mild in action. No harmful drugs.

It's surprising to know the number of youngsters and even grown-ups who suffer from worms but don't realize it. Every one needs a good laxative to avoid stomach troubles.

Signs of Worms: Offensive breath, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, pains about the navel, pale face, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever. adv

But we cannot think of her idle;
She must be a homemaker still.
God giveth that work to the angels
Who fitest the task fulfil.

And somewhere yet in the hilltops
Of the country that hath no pain,
She will watch in her beautiful doorway
To bid us a welcome again.

A QUESTION ANSWERED

The world is such a cheery place
If we but see it so;
There's beauty everywhere we step
To set the heart aglow.
The air is full of rythmic joy,
The blue sky throbs with love,
And every leaf and flower and bird
Its pure delight in life is stirred
Its story to prove.

The world is such a sorry place
If we but see it so;
There's sadness in the skies above
And on the earth below.
The children weep, the birds are mute,
The flowers droop and die;
All sounds are tuned in minor key,
All sights but picture misery;
We wonder, wonder why.

How can we solve the problem—we
Who fain the truth would know?
How can earth be so beautiful,
And how so full of woe?
O, human heart, give answer, for
In thee that answer lies;
It is not for birds, or flowers, or air
To make life either dull or fair
Or prove its mysteries.

Life's radience from within must shine
Its harmony express
The aspirations of the soul,
The power to cheer and bless.
'Tis love, love only, in the air,
The sky, the birds, the flowers,
That glorifies the common life,
That triumphs over care and strife
In this sweet world of ours.

BREEDING OATS FOR INCREASED PRODUCTION

Selection Within Pure Lines Effects no Change

Previous to 1910 it was almost universally assumed that small fluctuating variations were, to some extent at least inherited. It was further believed that such variations were cumulative in effect and that substantial progress in breeding in a desired direction could be made by selecting, in successive generations, those individuals showing the given character in the most pronounced fashion.

In 1903 Johannsen announced that in self-fertilized plants there was no effect of selection within a "pure line". He defined a "pure line" as the offspring of a single, self-fertilized, homozygotic individual. In such a line all of the individuals would possess exactly the same germinal constitution. Hence except for the fluctuations caused by external conditions every individual would be like every other individual. Johannsen supported his theory by a large amount of experimental evidence from beans.

Experimental evidence shows that there are two sharply defined classes of variation. The one called fluctuating or continuous variation is due entirely to differences in the environmental influences. These variations, caused by external conditions, are not transmitted, in any degree, from one generation to the next. The second class called discontinuous variations, mutations, etc., have their origin in variations in the germinal substance. These variations are transmitted from generation to generation. The distinction, then, is between variations which arise in the germ plasm and hence are inherited and variations which arise in the soma and are not inherited.

In the main the work of the last decade has supported this pure line hypothesis. As the hypothesis is in accord with the modern conception of inheritance, it has on this account been very generally accepted. In its practical work of attempting to breed an oat better adapted to Maine than existing varieties the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station recognized that the present views of hereditary processes may be materially altered in the future. And in view of such a possibility deemed it wise to make certain of the facts as applied to the oat plant and to study successive selected generations from various points of view.

Accordingly in 1911 the Maine Station planned an experiment to test the selection in pure lines of oats. From the results of these studies it must be concluded that with pure line oats selection within the variety so far as yield of grain and of straw are concerned produced no effect which could be detected by the careful laboratory tests used.

The results given above mean that if, for instance, one sows Maine 340 oats purchased from a grower who had a yield of only 40 bushels per acre he will be as likely to have a good crop as though he had purchased his seed from a man who had a yield of 80 bushels per acre. To insure having all of the advantages of a pure line of oats for seed it is essential that it be known that the line is pure, that it is unmixed with other lines of oats. But the yield per acre has no significance in the seed selection obtained with the same pure line seed on different fields or different grains. This does not mean that all pure lines are of equal value. For one pure line of oats may be a poor yielder and another line a high yielder. But it does mean that starting with a pure line of high yielding possibility the purity of the strain is the one and only essential.

This letter is preliminary to another in this series on pure line seed oats for the farmer.

HOW TO FORGET.

If you were busy being kind,
Before you knew it, you would find
You'd soon forget to think 'twas true
That someone was unkind to you.

If you were busy being glad,
And cheering people who were sad,
Although your heart might ache a bit,
You'd soon forget to notice it.

If you were busy being true
To what you know you ought to do,
You'd be so busy you'd forget
The blunders of the folks you've met.

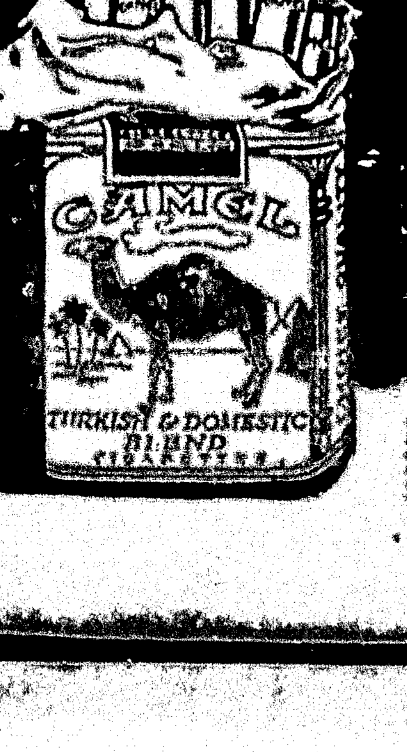

If you were busy being right,
You'd find yourself too busy quite
To criticise your neighbor long,
Because he's busy being wrong.

A Business Problem

By CECILLE LANGDON

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Any husband who tries to tear a wife away from all the home ties she cherishes is selfish and unmanly!"

"And any wife who will hold back from her husband's chances of making something of himself is a foe direct in the household!"

It was not the first time that Rodney and Esther Mills had clashed, but on this occasion high words followed. They were at odds on a very vital subject. Ever since they married five years previous both had worked harmoniously, cheerfully behind their store counter, building up a moderately successful business. For a long time, however, Rodney had entertained dreams of spreading out and seeking a broader field of activity. The magnet city allured him. There had come along a man who was willing to buy him out at a good figure. The temptation was irresistible. Rodney consummated the deal without saying anything about it to anybody. When he made the dread announcement his wife was fairly prostrated.

In vain had he argued with her. She would admit that with their youth and industry they might score a success on a larger scale, but she absolutely refused to leave Woodville.

There was truth and sense in what she said, but Rodney was doggedly persistent now. The store was in other hands, he heard of a good business in the city for investment and was determined to have his way at any cost. The result was serious. Up to the last moment Esther refused to even discuss the situation. Rodney went away alone, grimly resolved to get re-established in a prominent way, and wrote for his wife to come to him. He received in reply a definite announcement that Esther would not join him at any time and their paths parted then and there.

Twice Rodney wrote again, but he received no reply. He became engrossed in business and his heart hardened as he considered himself the aggrieved one. When he got his affairs in fair running order he was half minded to return to Woodville and make a final appeal to the wife he missed greatly.

He now realized how helpful she had been to him. He began to uneasily recognize that he had been dictatorial and self-willed at the cost of a love he really cherished. He inferred that all kinds of rumors as to his arbitrary course might have led to mean gossip and exaggerations, and for this reason he made up his mind finally to follow out the path he had chosen alone.

Every three months he sent his wife a check fairly awarding her half on what the investment of their money realized. For three years he was prosperous. Then brisk and unexpected competition in the neighborhood where he had established in business brought diminished trade and he broke down from worry and real cares. His physician sent him away for an absolute rest of two months, Rodney ordering his lawyer to liquidate the business which, except for the three good years, had turned out a failure.

Rodney, patched up in health but depressed and disappointed, returned from his brief exile to find that his business assets had just about paid all debts and left a mere modicum of surplus. He had serious thoughts of taking a position as a salaried employee, and then the home longing prompted him to pay a surreptitious visit to Woodville.

He arranged it so that he arrived there at dusk, and kept out of the view of old friends and acquaintances until the stores were closed and few people generally were stirring about. When he had left the town his wife had gone to make her home with her mother and sisters. His ideas were vague as to his chances of getting a glimpse of Esther. The store he had sold out was located on his way to the supposed home of his wife. He was naturally curious to view it. As he neared it he observed that an addition had been built on and the show window revealed an increased stock over the old times. He was puzzled, even startled as he chanced to notice the sign over the door. It was "Mills & Co."

A light showed in a window at the rear of the store. He stole around to the side. There in one of the comfortably furnished living rooms was his wife seated at a desk, busy with some bookkeeping. Rodney understood now. She had in some way secured the business he had sold out and from all appearances was making a success of it. Timidly he knocked at the door. A moment later Esther confronted him at its threshold.

"Can I come in?" he asked humbly, quivering all over with suppressed emotion. Esther, too, was vastly moved, but she suppressed any exhibition of the fact.

"No one has a better right," she answered steadily, and opened wide the door. "The money you sent me helped buy back the old business. I am simply a caretaker in your behalf."

"You mean—you mean," he quivered, "that I would be welcome here?"

"You are very welcome," she said simply.

"Home!" he aspirated, sinking wearily, but oh! so contentedly into a chair. "Esther, can you forgive and forget?"

"Both," answered this peerless one of womankind.

TEN POSTS ADOPT ORPHANS

A. E. F. Men, Home Again, Show They Have Not Forgotten Fatherless French Children.

When the A. E. F. packed all its troubles in its old kit bag and sailed for home loaded down with German helmets, it left behind in France 3,000 little war orphans which it had adopted during the war and for whose maintenance and education it had been paying. There was hardly an outfit in France which at one time was not in communication with its tiny mascot, a communication of a delightfully friendly nature that shellfire, mud and cooties could not interrupt.

Now the A. E. F. is back home again and hundreds of thousands have enlisted in the ranks of the American Legion. Consequently, with the memories of the letters of petite Jean and petite Jeanette fresh in their minds, the one-time godfathers of the expeditionary forces are again adopting the war orphans of France.

So far ten posts have adopted orphans, and a heavy enrollment on the list of godfathers is expected. It costs only $75 to maintain an orphan for a year, the funds being forwarded to national headquarters in Indianapolis, where they are turned over to the American Red Cross, which is assigning the children and attending to all the details of the work on the other side.

WAR BRIDES ORGANIZE CLUB

Newlyweds From France Band Together in Los Angeles—Hold Regular Meetings.

When Greek meets Greek there comes the tug-of-war, but when French war bride meets French war bride, they apparently form a club. At least, that is what they have done in Los Angeles, which boasts no less than five one-time mademoiselles who chose to follow their soldier husbands across the seas and a continent they had never seen before to a home in sunny California.

Regular meetings are held by the club at which, it is to be presumed, the main topic of conversation is what is new in the way of fashions from Paris, and the latest wrinkle in household thrift, an art wherein the French woman always has excelled.

The members of the club are Mrs. Jack Elwood, formerly Mlle. Blanche Deckukulaire of Lille; Mrs. Walter B. Matthews, formerly Mlle. Germaine Viallon of Paris; Mrs. Robert Allen, formerly Mlle. Helene Bernard of Paris; Mrs. L. C. Wilson, formerly Mlle. Henriette Bergeyre of Bordeaux, and Mrs. Arthur Withrow, formerly Mlle. Maximillienne Barren of Marseilles.

SHE CAN ANSWER QUESTIONS

Miss Pearl Burtnett Is in Charge of Statistical Section at the National Headquarters.

Whenever anybody wants to know how many posts the American Legion has, where they are located, who their officers are or any other information of a statistical nature their questions are answered by Miss Pearl Burtnett of Indianapolis.

Miss Burtnett has charge of the records in the statistical section of the organization division at American Legion national headquarters and what she doesn't know about the Legion and its multitude of integral units probably isn't worth knowing anyhow.

Affiliation Seems Certain.

A close affiliation between the American Legion, the G. A. R. and the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada, is the aim expressed in a resolution that the executive council of the Canadian organization recently adopted at Winnipeg. It was recommended that negotiations be opened with the American bodies. The resolution is to be presented to the Great War Veterans' association for approval, and it is believed that its adoption is certain.

Patriotism Is Normal.

No one may impugn the Americanism of the Upper Michigan peninsula without getting a rise out of Hessemer Post No. 27, which at a recent meeting adopted a resolution denying in unmistakable terms that the patriotism of that section was other than normal. The action followed a recent statement by a legionaire accusing the peninsula of harboring "alien slackers."

WITH ONLY SELF-STITCHING

A snugly collared and belted tailleur with no trimming except self-stitching which will hold its own against the more elaborate but not more fascinating models.

BLOUSE IN FAVOR FOR FALL

Popular Garment Promises to Flourish as Never Before—Dresses and Gowns Passe.

Dresses and gowns are utterly passe. But if milady feels that such garments have their place in the fall wardrobe, she must see to it that her one-piece gown is so camouflaged that it appears as a separate skirt and blouse, for fashion decrees that blouses shall flourish as never before in this coming season.

Manufacturers and retailers explain this fad as another broadside at fashion dictating Paris. For Paris has long sniffed at the American invention of separate skirt and waist.

New York women have hailed the blouse year with delight. The avenue shop windows are full of these "uppers" of all kinds and prices. The slip-on blouse continues to be first in popularity, while bolero and tie-back effects are very good. The long tunics and Russian models are in the minority, although this past season effect is partly carried out by the moyen age blouses, which fit the figure like a tight bodice or basque to the hips and then flare out over full plaited or gathered skirt. The old style tucked-in blouses are so completely out of the running that skirts have been sewed to inner camisoles over which the blouse is worn.

The only new blouses that are not worn outside the skirt are the hand-made models of linen, batiste, lawn or organdie. These are adorned with hand-sewn laces, tucking, hemstitching or drawn work and are to be very popular for morning wear.

Another quaint exception to the over model is the stern 1860 blouse. These are fashioned of heavy silk, tightly fitted to the body and button primly up the center front, way to the ears.

A great majority of the Fifth avenue blouses are fairly opulent with color and material. Their purpose in life is to liven up the rather dull fall suits and coats. Favorite shades are reseda, green, rust and chow-brown, peacock and turquoise blue, mahogany, canary, henna and black and white. The latter combination, especially, is having a heavy run.

"MOLDED FROCK" NEW MODE

Paris Style Originators Plan Smart Attire—Corsets Are Only Slightly Curved.

According to the fashion experts of Paris, the "molded frock" is among the smartest of the new fashions. But by "molded" we do not mean a revival of the "hour glass" figure—that unnatural over-emphasized fashion which made women look as though they had been poured into their clothes and then left to harden. Mme. Magnier, the famous corset maker of Paris, announces that corsets will be "only slightly curved, following the natural lines." And from that we gather that the frocks will tend in the same direction.

And several of these "molded frocks" have already been seen at the opera, worn by the smartest society leaders of Paris. The corsage is straight across the top, supported by a strand of brilliants or perhaps a narrow silver ribbon, and the tissue itself is carried down over one hip in an unbroken line and across the front, with a fold or two of drapery at the left side. The whole effect is exquisitely graceful and has the priceless charm of simplicity.—Harper's Bazar.

Fashionable Fabrics.

Pile fabrics such as duvetyn, plush and velours abound, and leading colors are gray, brown, taupe, and navy. Novelty color favorites seem to be hectic tomato hues and turquoise blue.

Novelty.

Bracelets with little charms and figures hanging from them as bangles are worn a great deal this year.

MRS. BARTELTT NEW ASSISTANT SECRETARY

Mrs. Blanche Bartlett of Washington, prominent in Red Cross work for the past three years, has come to Maine as assistant executive secretary of the Maine Public Health Association. While her work will be mainly in the field, organizing public health associations in the counties and cities of the state, her headquarters will be at Augusta.

Mrs. Bartlett comes at this time to organize the Christmas Seal campaign which opens on December 2 and will remain in the state at least three months, and possibly accept a permanent position as assistant executive secretary of the Association. She is already in the field appointing and conferring with county chairmen and organizing the drive by counties, cities, and towns.

A quota of $60,000 has been named for Maine which means the sale of four million Christmas Seals and approximately $20,000 in health bonds which are in denominations from $5 to $1000. Ninety five per cent of the money from the sale stays here in Maine to be devoted to the cause of better health in the Pine Tree State.

Mrs. Bartlett during the war was connected with the Potomac Division of the Red Cross, chiefly engaged in educational and organization work in West Virginia. During the past year she has been in Panama with the Foreign Insular Division of the Red Cross there, as their special representative, her husband being field director of the Red Cross in the Canal Zone. She is a recognized expert in organization work, which speaks well for the organization of the Maine Seal campaign and later for the formation of health organizations throughout the state.

THE KNOCKER'S CREED

I believe that nothing is right. I believe that everything is wrong. I believe that I alone have the right idea.

The town is wrong, the editor is wrong, the teachers are wrong, the people are wrong, the things they are doing are wrong, and they are doing them in the wrong way anyhow. I believe I could fix things if they would let me. If they don't I will get a lot of other fellows like myself and we will have a law passed to make others do things the way WE want them done.

I do not believe the town ought to grow. It is too big now. I believe in fighting every public improvement and in spoiling everybody's pleasure. I am always to the front in opposing things and never yet have I advanced an idea or supported a movement that would make people happier or add to the pleasure of man, woman or child. I am opposed to fun and am happiest at a funeral. I believe in starting reforms that will take all the joy out of life. It's a sad world and I am glad of it. Amen.

A MIDNIGHT SESSION OF THE KLU KLUXERS

This remarkable flashlight photograph shows a midnight meeting of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan held recently on the top of Stone Mountain near Atlanta, Ga. It is probably the first time such a meeting has been photographed. The picture shows the flaming cross, the symbol of the Klan, and the Klansmen in their white costumes, similar to those worn by the original Klansmen in the Civil War days.

NATIONAL CAPITAL

1920 the distribution of box car supplied to meet the demand anticipated in connection with an unusually heavy wheat crop, followed by a record breaking corn crop presented a difficult situation. According to the car service Division, the railroads succeeded in returning more than 92% of all box cars owned by the western railroads to them by September 15. The number of cars actually delivered to western roads since that time amounts to over twice the number of cars they were short as compared with their ownership on June 1. This relocation movement has been particularly difficult because of the great demand for cars from all sections has made it necessary to deprive certain parts of the country of the cars belonging to their roads, irrespective of the rights of their particular lines. Eastern roads are, as a matter of fact, delivering to western lines at Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis a designated number of cars per day in excess of the number required for equalization of equipment as provided for in the original relocation movement. These cars are being distributed between the roads of the west in such a manner as to give quick relief to the roads whose supply is below the average and particularly to lines which have been losing cars during the past few weeks by reason of heavy eastbound shipments.

IS SOLDIERING BECOMING A SNAP?

The number of officers and men who entered the war and who have now chosen army life as their permanent occupation, indicates that the life of a soldier is not altogether irksome in peace times. Elevating the men in khaki has proved a distinct hit with the War Department, and it also appears that the men whom politicians have been telling us are being held in Germany and elsewhere, are not having such a hard time after all. Major General E. C. Harris, the Adjutant General of the Army says.

"The service in Germanyh as proved to be so attractive that the ranks are always filled. Our chief difficulty is that regiments are apt to be over-enlisted before we can stop the recruiting officers from accepting more applicants, and we must send such men to the station for which they were accepted."

Equally popular is Army service in Hawaii, and as a rule few recruits can be accepted for duty there. However the 13th Field Artillery has left the United States for service in the mid-Pacific, and enlistments for this regiment have been issued. In the old Army new recruits had no choice in the selection of a regiment, and could not name any particular station. In the new peace time Army a man may either pick his own regiment or designate the part of the world to which he wishes to be sent.

ECONOMY AND THE USE OF POWER

The forthcoming development on a larger scale of the nation's vast water power resources, must be considered one of the most significant achievements in the field of American industry in the post war industrial readjustment. The increased costs of fuel and the diminishing supplies of our fuel reserves necessitate what the Federal Reserve Board believes to be "much more energetic action if industrial conditions are to be made safe for the coming Winter." Water power is about to have a new certificate as a national asset, and the United States is going to make a late start in the utilizing of this means of effecting a saving in the manner of producing its energy, which it is confidently predicted can be accomplished to the extent of one billion dollars a year.

THE PROFITS FROM PROFITEERING

Little Cuba wallowed in its wealth while sugar was pyoting in prices. But the stills were knocked from under the fortunes prices of that commodity, Cuba run up the white flag, and it was necessary for the President of that Republic to declare a moratorium until December 1, in order to keep the country from going on the toboggan.

The big story of Cuba is identical to the small story which exists in every community of our own land. Institutions which have made more money in a single year than they had ever made before in a dozen years, cannot see their way clear to lower prices and to help the country to restore itself to its normal conditions. This is doubly hard if it makes it necessary to sell the stock of goods on hand at actual cost or below cost. Nevertheless, the call comes is dawning, and even the profiteers are beginning to understand that the boom days are over, and that they must adopt the attitude of far seeing industrial leaders who declare that it is high time to return to the conservative stand ards in trade and industry.

RAISING HEMP

Kentucky once led in hemp production, but has turned to more profitable crops and relinquished the lead to Wisconsin, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The Badger State cultivated 7,000 acres, half the country's total, this year, followed by Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio and Calif[illegible] with Kentucky sixth.

FLAX IN THE UNITED STATES

In 1920, 2,000 acres of flax were cultivated in the United States, as against [illegible] acres in 1919, the United States Department of Agriculture estimates. Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan and the Willamette Valley of Oregon lead in production. The 1920 crop is valued at $[illegible]

THE PRIDE OF VICTORY

It is estimated that 3,227,021 men who [illegible] the Army are entitled to Victory Medals, but to date only 353,214, or about ten per cent of the number [illegible] applied.

ANNIVERSARY PARTY

Mr. Augustus Carter and daughter, Frances, entertained at the Carter homestead recently in honor of the tenth marriage anniversary of Mr. Carter's son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter.

It was with pleasure that relatives and friends gathered on this occasion. Those present were: Mrs. Mary Capen and daughters, Alice and Minnie, also Mrs. Laura Roberts of China Maine; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Capen and daughter, Ethel; Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Lyon and daughter, Katherine, Mrs. Harry Carter, Miss Julia Carter, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hall, Miss Cornelia Chapman and Mr. Ernest Walker, and the four Carter children.

Many gifts of tin and pyrex ware were given.

Refreshments of sandwiches, coffee and cake were served, after which singing was enjoyed and a poem was read contributed by a friend. The remarks by Mr. Augustus Carter in regard to the occasion were much enjoyed.

TO MRS. EDWARD MELLIN CARTER
In Honor of Her Happy Anniversary Day, November 7, 1920

Dear friends we are gathered together tonight,
Our love and congratulations to unite.
To E. M. Carter, and his wife, our own Fannie Mae,
Upon this, their happy anniversary day

Not only marriage bells, but a birthday too,
Was presented dear Fannie on this date to you,
For in the year nineteen-ten, on the seventh day of November,
A lovely wedding took place which we always will remember.

The pretty home decorations upon dear Capen Hill,
Are ever fresh in my memory still,
Where everything was done for the bride that day,
Before she left home circles and went away,

To commence life's duties in her own little home nest,
With the boy of her heart whom she loved the best,
Time has rolled on since that happy day,
But ever faithful and true to her Ned has been our Fannie Mae.

Ten years ago tonight you were a bride,
Now four blessed children grow up by your side,
What a wonderful wife and loving mother you always have been
Since your wedding day, November 7th, nineteen ten.

Edward Augustus, Rebecca, Richard, and Stanley, too,
Have surely been blessed with parents' love which has ever been true.
Finer children I am sure have to be found yet,
Than those now included in the Carter quartette

So now in conclusion I just want to say,
May the blessing of God rest upon you always,
And may your anniversaries number ten times ten,
Is the hearty wish from all friends, and your fellowmen.

BATES COLLEGE NEWS

Bates won a cross country track meet last Friday. In itself, this statement does not mean much, but when it is considered that hitherto the University of Maine has won the title every year, once having a team that got the National championship, and that Coach Presti considered this year's team superior to any that Maine had ever had, the bare fact that Bates in 1920 champion of Maine begins to take on significance. It is expected that the same team, with perhaps some slight changes, will be sent to Boston next Saturday to compete in the New England Intercollegiates.

Simultaneous with the track meet will be a football game with the New York University at New York.

Herbert Bean is one of two assistant football managers, with a good chance of becoming manager another season. The manager, if his work is satisfactory, is awarded a letter.

The Freshman football team played the fast Coburn Classical Institute team last Saturday, coming out at the small end of a 7 to 0 score. The smooth work of the team was very satisfactory and good results are looked for when Thornton Academy is confronted this Saturday, Nov. 13.

WEST PARIS

Major George Webber of Auburn will speak at Grange Hall, Thursday, Nov. 11. West Paris High school will furnish music. The address will be in keeping with Armistice Day, the landing of the Pilgrims, and the future outlook of the country. His address is under the auspices of West Paris Chamber of Commerce.

The remains of Mrs. Alice Cora Sparks Wood were brought here from Boston, Friday afternoon for interment beside her husband in West Paris cemetery. Mrs. Wood died very suddenly from heart failure at the home of a friend in Winthrop, Mass., where she was visiting. A funeral service was held at Roxbury, Mass. Prayer was offered at the grave by Rev. H. A. Markley. The service was attended by relatives and friends from the Universalist church, which Mrs. Wood attended when a resident here. She was the widow of John P. Wood, who was engaged for some time in business at Snow's Falls. After Mr. Wood's death she closed the home, which was later sold to Ludlow Godsoe of Boston.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Delora Ryder of Cleveland, Ohio, a brother, Reuben Sparks of Boston, five nephews, George, Harold, Averill Sparks of Boston, Hector Sparks of New York and John Sparks of Paris, two nieces, Mrs. Alice Godsoe of Dorchester, Mass., and Mrs. Delora Smith of West Paris, also a stepson, Fred Wood of Boston.

Mrs. Wood was a kind, generous woman, and her cheerful, optimistic disposition made her a very pleasant companion. During the years she resided here she was especially helpful in coaching the high school prize speaking and the dramatic entertainments given by local talent. Her kindness in reading and assisting the various church entertainments, and her great help in West Paris Grange, was always appreciated.
